Brave Officer Shot Down From Ambush Near the Empire Mine.

WAS FOLLOWING UNION OUTLAWS WHEN KILLED.

Party of Unionists Had Fired on Guard Preceding Miners Going Peaceably to Work.

FIVE UNION MEN ARE UNDER ARREST

Indignation Intense and Prospect for a Vigorous Prosecution.

Hopkinsville, Ky., October 29.

The Empire Coal and Mining Company this afternoon offered a reward of $500 for the apprehension and conviction of the assassin or assassins of Mr. Robert Coffey.

(Special to The Bee.)

Empire, Ky., Oct. 26.—Robert H. Coffey, of Hopkinsville, a deputy sheriff of Christian county, was shot and killed early this morning near the Empire Coal Company's mines at this place. The murder was another of the outrages growing incident to the long and bitter contest between the union men allied with the United Mine Workers and the non-union miners employed in the coal mines of this section. Coffey was evidently shot from ambush while he was attempting to arrest a man or men in a buggy on a county road, when he seems to have been pursuing. His body was found some hours later. A soft-nosed bullet had pierced his thigh, tearing out a great mass of bone and flesh.

A camp of union men, idlers and malcontents, is located in Hopkins county, a few miles from the Empire mines. The non-union miners have been so often fired at and the property of the companies so often attacked that it has been necessary for the operators to employ guards to protect lives and property.

This morning about 6 o'clock John Fields, a guard at the Empire, was making a survey preparatory to the coming on of the day shift. He was fired on from the timber on a neighboring hillside. He dropped behind a railroad embankment and returned the fire from his Winchester. Fifty or sixty shots were directed at him, only three striking near him, though the range was only 150 to 200 yards. Hearing the shots, Coffey, and other deputies and guards about the mining settlement, seized their guns and rushed for the scene of action. Coffey, who was in charge of the armed forces, met a horseman, Dr. Geo. J. Gooch, who lent him his mount, and Coffey made for the woods at a gallop, the others following and scattering through the hills. Some time after Coffey disappeared five shots were heard in the direction he had taken but were not immediately regarded.

When the searchers returned to Empire, Coffey was missing. Parties were sent out to look for him and he was found dead in the road. His horse, unharmed, was grazing near by with the bridle reins thrown off his neck. Coffey's rifle and pistol were with him and had not been discharged. The officer had apparently followed the tracks of a buggy from a point near where the early no officer more dreaded by the criminal classes.

A Courageous Man.

He was a man of intrepid courage. Time and again his bravery had been tested under the most trying circumstances, and always he was cool, alert and absolutely fearless. He was devoted to his work, which had won him widespread and well-deserved reputation. He was formerly on the police force of Hopkinsville, and later was special agent for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company. He served a term as mayor of Guthrie, Ky., and later operated a detective agency.

For about eight months he had been in the service of the Empire Coal and Mining Company as chief guard, and had discharged the duties of the place with perfect success.

Nearly a year ago, and again last spring there was considerable disorder about Empire due to efforts to organize the mines. These attempts failed, for the miners have no complaints to make against the company, and express themselves as pleased at all times with their relation to it.

Trouble Starts.

Everything had worked very smoothly till the last week in September, following the breaking up of union camps in Hopkins county. On September 30, the unnamed Empire men were fired on from ambush when they were on their way home from work. On the following night the houses of the miners were fired into. In the two attacks two of the company's men were wounded, but not seriously.

The grand jury investigated the assaults and returned indictments against Bud and Bert Knight, who had been recognized among the assailants. Neither has been captured.

Lives in Peril.

From that time till the present the miners and the guards who had been sent to protect the company's property have been in peril, for shooting from ambush and at all hours of the day and night has been kept up.

On Oct. 10 there was a fight in the rain and darkness between the guards and unknown men and over two hundred shots were fired. A day or two later several guards were fired on near Mannington.

It became more quiet during the following week and on the 18th the authorities reduced the force of guards, releasing ten men. There are now twenty men on duty. It is probable that the number of guards will be immediately increased.

Aided by Union.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Oct. 28.—The five strikers were taken this morning at 10 o'clock before Judge Cansler to have the time of their examining trial set. The United Mine Workers of America, the miners' union of which they are members, has hurried to their assistance. District President James D. Wood arrived in the city this morning on the 6 o'clock train. With him was Attorney Everett Jennings, of Madisonville. The firm of G. W. Southall & Son was employed to aid in the defense, and the services of Judge William H. Yost of Greenville have also been secured. County Attorney Anderson, for the commonwealth, and Hunter Wood & Son, representing the mining company, stated that they would not be ready to enter into the trial for ten days, as at least that much

Subscriber Takes Time to Write Approval of The Bee's Stand.

FOR LAW AND GOOD ORDER

In these days of the outlaw and the demagogue, when no man's life and no man's business seems safe from the attacks of these two classes of men who curse the country, it is pleasant to the editor to get an occasional expression of endorsement from an appreciative reader. Friendly approval, indeed, generally goes far toward making up an editor's reward.

A Webster county subscriber writes:

Editor Bee: Enclosed find money order for extension of my subscription to The Bee. In these days of anarchy, lawlessness and midnight assassins, it is gratifying to have at least one paper in southern Kentucky whose editor is a bold, fearless, outspoken advocate of law and order.

May its shadow never grow less nor its sting less pungent.

Grapevine Items.

The farmers are taking advantage of the fine weather and are getting up with their fall work.

Elder W. H. Ligon filled his regular appointment here Saturday and Sunday. He has just closed a meeting at Bethlehem with nine additions to the church.

Several from this vicinity have been attending the protracted meeting in progress at Liberty.

James Myers, an old citizen, was buried here last Friday evening. He was afflicted with dropsy.

Thomas F. Wilson is still very low at his home on Flat Creek, with but little hope of his recovery.

James Lynch of Noyah moved on the farm with her son-in-law, Joe Parrish, who lives in the Wilson's schoolhouse vicinity.

Miss Mylene Food returned Saturday from Greenville. She was accompanied home by Mesdames Elmer Puryear and Rufus Martin.

Mrs. Ann Cox of Madisonville is spending the week with her sister, Mrs. Lucinda Todd.

John Barrett Moore, who has been living near the church, has moved to the Buckner farm, in order to get closer to his work.

Mrs. Sarah Slaton, mother of John Slaton, has been spending a week with him.

Will Walker and family spent several days in this vicinity last week.

PRES. MINTERS KILLED.

Veteran Colored Miner Loses Life by Standing Shot in Monarch Mines.

Press Minters, aged about 50 years, a thrifty and industrious veteran colored miner, was killed Friday in the Monarch mine by a fall of coal, caused by a faulty shot he had made. It was the fatal "standing shot" again, as it is known in mining parlance. In other words, Minters had mined his room and fired his shot, which loosened the coal, but left it standing. Going back to finish, he worked underneath the coal, which fell and caught him.

Press Minters had been a coal miner in this county for many years, and had accumulated some property. He was an honest, sober man, and numbered many friends among both white and colored people. His home was in Earlington, where he owned several houses and lots.

102 Years Old.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 30.—Jno. Hanselman, living in Kentucky, opposite Mt. Vernon, Ind., celebrated his 102d birthday Sunday, and a large number of his relatives and friends gathered there in honor of the event. Hanselman is probably the oldest man in Kentucky.

Robbers at Morganfield.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 28.—Robbers secured quite a sum of money from a safe in the Illinois Central depot at Morganfield, Ky., last night, and were tracked by bloodhounds to the Henderson bridge, where it is believed they escaped into Indiana. Local detectives are searching for them.

A NEW TRIAL ORDERED.

Appellate Court Finds Numerous Errors in Record of Lower Court.

CASE OF THE HOPKINS COUNTY DEPUTIES REVERSED

Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Tenth Instructions of the Court Do Not Stand the Test.

LINDLE HAD RIGHT TO ARREST WITHOUT WARRANTS

Officers Had Right, in Order to Make Arrests to Shoot, if Any Resisted Arrest.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct.—29.

The judgment of the Hopkins Circuit Court in the case of the Commonwealth against J. B. Lindle, Wade McIntosh and Ed Johnson, in which they were convicted of manslaughter and conspiracy in the killing of Henry Taylor, a union miner, and sentenced to confinement for two years in the State penitentiary, was reversed by the Court of Appeals today, and the case sent back to the lower court for a new trial. The whole court considered the case. Judge Burnham delivered the opinion and Judge Guffy dissented.

The case has been a hard fought one and excited much feeling in the Western Kentucky mining section at the time of the trial in the lower court.

Lindle was a deputy sheriff of Hopkins county, on duty at one of the mines at the time of the killing of Taylor, and had summoned Johnson and McIntosh as members of a posse to go with him to Boxtown, where the union miners were assembled, to demand that they, in pursuance of a proclamation of the sheriff, disband. Taylor was at the head of the column of miners. He drew a pistol from his pocket and a number of shots were fired. Taylor and another miner, Bill Cook, were killed.

Appealed Because of Errors.

On appeal of the case to the court here by the defendants, error in the admission of evidence and the instructions of the court were alleged. The court says in the opinion of today that the defendants should have been granted a continuance under the peculiar facts of the case because the Commonwealth subpoenaed, with a view of introducing, witnesses whose names were not at the foot of the indictment, and that the court erred in not permitting the defense to prove declarations by members of the United Mine Workers' Association as to the plans and purposes of the organization to close up the various mines in Hopkins county. The court says that the seventh, eighth and ninth instructions of the court were calculated to divert the minds of the jurors from the facts upon which the guilt or innocence really turned; that the sixth instruction was erroneous and prejudicial; that questions as to the relative rights of the United Mine Workers to assemble and march in a peaceable manner, and of the right of the operators to protect their property from violence and invasion, should not have been submitted to the jury, and that the tenth instruction was an entirely erroneous and misleading statement of the law. In commenting on the tenth instruction Judge Burnham said:

Judge Burnham's Opinion.

All that the law required of Lindle was that he should have in good faith believed and had reasonable grounds to believe that Taylor and the others with him had banded themselves together and gone forth armed for the purpose of alarming, intimidating or injuring any person or persons. If this was true he and the other defendants summoned by him had the lawful right to disperse and arrest such persons without warrant, and to use such force as was reasonably necessary to effect this purpose, and if Taylor and those with him resisted arrest it was lawful, if necessary to make such arrest, to shoot the persons so resisting.

When the case came before the court here, on appeal, Attorney General Breckinridge refused, after reading the record, to ask an affirmation of the judgment of the lower court. The case was argued before the court for the defendants by Ollie James, of Marion, Crittenden county.

The Working People's Slanderers.

"I killed the President," said Czolgosz, liar, loafer, murderer, anarchist, "because he was the enemy of the working people."

It was a practical certainty that he would say something like this, if he said anything.

It is not often that the working people escape when some scoundrel poses as a reformer.

Czolgosz, who according to his own father, would not work, of course defended his crime by declaring that it was done in the interest of the working people.

There is not a charlatan or rascal in politics who does not attempt to advance his selfish and swindling schemes by claiming to be the champion of the working people.

Socialism, anarchism and most of the other isms urged by those who would tear down society in preference to working for a living, are urged by those who seek to give such nostrums some respectability by insisting that they are for the benefit of the working people.

And yet this whole brood have a supreme contempt for working people who honestly work, especially when they succeed in bettering their own condition by their work.

That real working people have not suffered more than they have from the mouthings of mountebanks and adventurers is due to the fact that the world has a pretty accurate estimate of these slanderers of honest labor, and knows pretty well the motives of what they say.—Courier-Journal.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1901.

Don't forget that next Tuesday is election day. It is the duty of every citizen of legal age to go to the polls and vote for the best interests of his home and county on that day.

The published announcement says: "Good speakers will accompany the band wagon." It was well put, except that the qualifying adjective might with propriety have been omitted. Whoever accused them of being "good?" But they do "accompany" the band wagon, which is "it" in this hurrah campaign. It looks like desperation when candidates need a brass band to secure an audience.

Certain villainous and outrageous reports are being whispered about for campaign purposes to aid the men who have lined themselves up against the coal industry of this county and the interests of the large proportion of the county's population directly interested in this important industry. The stories are too mean for publication—too black to print. But the population of Hopkins county carries a large enough proportion of intelligent people to label a vicious and wanton lie when they meet it, and upon the judgment and action of this class of citizens hangs the future welfare of the county's interests.

Good One From Clay.

(Louisville Evening Post.)

A few years ago I was in Clay county. One evening, having nothing to do, I dropped into the schoolhouse to see how they were getting along. The teacher called up the class to spell. One boy spelled the word glass but could not pronounce it. He was told to try it again, so he said, "G-l-a-s-s," and stopped again without pronouncing it. The teacher, to help him, said: "What is it you put in the window?"

A bright look came into the boy's face, and he said: "G-l-a-s-s—dad's old breeches."

RAILWAY COMPANIES

CANNOT BE INDICTED

Railroad Commission Must First Investigate Any Alleged Violations.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 25.—A decision of much importance to railroad interests in Kentucky was rendered at today's session of the Court of Appeals. It is that a grand jury cannot indict a railroad company for violation of the long and short haul clause of the constitution and statutes unless the State Railroad Commission has first investigated the complaint and refused to grant the railroad company the right to so charge.

It was handed down in the case of the Illinois Central Railroad Company against the Commonwealth, appealed from the Hardin County Circuit Court. Chief Justice Paynter and Justices White and Guffy, three of the seven members of the court, dissented from the opinion.

Brain Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been authorized by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for the brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. G. ## MORSE, FINANCIER.

FEW EMPERORS OF INDUSTRY WHO COMES FROM MAINE.

The Ice Magnate Who Runs Telephone Companies, Banks and Steamship Lines With Seeming Recklessness—Some of His Newest Plans.

Mr. Charles W. Morse, who has but returned from his luxurious tour and who has since his return stirred the world of finance by a project to establish a big rival to the Bell Telephone company, is one of the most prominent of the big group of New York capitalists. He is perhaps best known through his connection with the Consolidated Ice company, sometimes called the Ice trust, of which he is president.

When Mr. Morse undertook to form into one corporation various companies that harvested and sold ice, he had the advantage of familiarity with the business from early life. When but a boy and before he engaged in the shipping business in his home state, Maine, he used to watch with interest the cutting of ice on the Kennebec river. It is said that when a very young man he cherished an idea of developing a large export ice trade with southern cities, but if he had any such scheme in view it was spoiled by the invention of ice-making apparatus.

Morse, however, was born with a golden spoon in his mouth and was destined, as life events proved, to become a modern Midas. Everything he touches seems to turn to gold. Of old New England stock, he has inherited from his Yankee ancestors the foresight and the shrewdness which mean so much to a man of business. Mr. Morse's life history is therefore not only interesting, but typical.

His ancestors left England in 1630, seven brothers of the name of Morse landing that year on the shores of New England. Some of the brothers settled in Maine and proceeded to build up a profitable shipbuilding business. It is from this branch of the family that the financier comes. He was born at Bath Oct. 21, 1850, his father being a shipbuilder. He got his education from a local academy and from Bowdoin college. Even while a student at college he found time to devote himself to profitable investments.

CHARLES W. MORSE.

In the ice business. On leaving school he at once entered into business with his father as an exporter of ice.

After a time ice dealers along the coast began to invest in icehouses in Maine. Young Morse at once fought them vigorously and in this way became closely connected with the ice business of Philadelphia and Baltimore. In 1880 he moved to New York and soon became interested in the ice business there.

In 1885 he resolved to put an end to the warfare between the competing companies, and as a result of his efforts the Consolidated Ice company was evolved. With rare diplomacy and after the expenditure of millions of dollars Mr. Morse finally united over twenty companies and all their properties, covering the ice business of the Hudson river and most of the business of Maine. The icehouses owned by the company have a capacity of over 2,500,000 tons.

Next Mr. Morse suddenly became heavily interested in New York banking properties. Measured by his investments and by the number of banks, trust corporations and realty companies with which he has become identified, Mr. Morse easily stands first among the bankers of the metropolis. All these interests he has obtained within the past two years. His latest enterprise is the consolidation of the leading steamship lines plying between New England ports.

These various exploits have made it apparent that this man from Maine is to be reckoned with in these days of great financial activity. He is one of the rich men of New York who can pass muster for that exclusive list that contains the names of men possessing $20,000,000 or more, and he has shown himself to have constructive genius and remarkable audacity, modified by great soundness of judgment.

It is for these reasons that his telephone venture is arousing much comment. The impression in New York financial circles is that Mr. Morse intends to finance his corporation so that it will be able to obtain at once the vast amount of money necessary to perfect plants in New York and Boston and over the territory between these two cities. Having accomplished that, the next move it is thought will be to extend the plant all over the United States and to construct as perfect a system as that possessed by the original company. The magnitude of this undertaking is self evident.

"Human Hearts."

To be transported from the strife of down to the atmosphere of hills, country, with its simple, honest people, pursuing their lives of affection and trust, is in itself a refreshment. To hear the singing of birds and those other sounds associated with the farm, to hear and see all things that flood the memory with pleasant experiences or excite the imagination to a realizing sense of the poetry of common things, is not only a relief from the cares of the day, but a renewal of the better side of our nature. In the realistic melodrama, "Human Hearts," whose scene is laid chiefly among the hills of Arkansas, we find a power and a charm that takes us from our present surroundings into others that have this effect. The details of the drama are true to nature and to art. Everything has its purpose and furthers the main intention of an all-absorbing story of love, hate, injustice and retribution. The play engages our sympathies for the sufferers visited on a family of plain, honest people, through the unfortunate marriage of a village blacksmith with a New York adventuress, who thought to reform but failed, the temptations of the old life proving too strong for her. Not only these two, but all associated with them suffer by their mistake. The dark side of this powerful story is well balanced by humor, adroitly introduced and made a necessary element of the action. To detail the plot would rob the reader of the pleasure of its surprises, for like "Shore Acres" and "The Old Homestead," "Human Hearts," while on a different theme, throbs with interest true to nature and is an overwhelming and thoughtful spectacle. That its production will be welcomed by an overflowing house, is almost a foregone conclusion. At Temple Theatre, Tuesday, Nov. 12.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.
By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The manner in which he referred to the Southland was most beautiful and eloquent. Prof. Gordon is well known here, having resided in Madisonville for some time, but at present is a teacher at South Kentucky college.

It Happened in a Drugstore.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a bottle of cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a very good recommendation for the remedy." It is for sale by St. Bernard Drug Store, Earlington; Ben T. Robinson, Mortons Gap; Geo. King, St. Charles.

BOUND IN BIRCH BARK.

Unique Edition de Luxe the Work of a Poet-Dramatist.

An author who is a bookbinder as well as poet and humorist presents a somewhat unique combination. Earle Hooker Eaton, whose dainty and graceful verse is familiar to magazine readers and who has contributed in no small way to the lighting of current periodicals by means of many humorous sketches, has just proved himself an artist at bookbinding.

Mr. Eaton's shop made buckram bound volume, "Rhymes and Yarns," has just been issued. It is a neat and attractive volume, but the edition de luxé of the book is something entirely unusual. As the author says in his foreword, "The cover was designed by nature." And so it was, for the volume is bound in the bark of the yellow birch. The bark is just as it came from the trees, with its soft shading of grays and greens and its silken frills unmarred by any attempt at further decoration. In keeping with the cover the binding has been done with red leather thong. The fly leaf bears a photograph and the autograph of the author.

The entire work of binding this unique edition was done by Mr. Eaton during a summer passed near his home, Otsego, N. Y. He cut the bark from the trees, folied by hand the sheets of old Stratford antique deckled paper, lined the pages together and painted the title on the handsome boxes in which the book is preserved. It was hard work, and the poet-bookbinder finished the job with calloused hands and a woodman's appetite. The result, however, is a volume which book lovers will delight to own. Almost the entire edition, by the way, was subscribed for before the work was done.

Mr. Eaton has been for several years a busy editor, holding a responsible position in New York Journalism, but he seems to have found odd hours in which to type preserve many pleasing fancies and funny stories. These have appeared in The Century Magazine, Harper's publications, Life, The Youth's Companion, etc., and it is the best of these which he has collected in "Rhymes and Yarns." Both editions are illustrated by R. F. Outcalt, Von Gottschalk and other artists.

GOTHAM'S CAMPAIGN

PERSONALITY OF LEADERS IN NEW YORK'S MUNICIPAL TEST.

Millionaire College President Who Heads Anti-Tammany Forces and the Reformer Whom Tammany Men Have Named For Mayor.

New York is now in the throes of a somewhat remarkable and interesting municipal campaign. The anti-Tammany forces have united, with Seth Low as their standard bearer, to fight the Tiger. The opposing candidate is Edward M. Shepard. Both candidates are men whose political careers have been indicative of an independent mind. In many other points can a parallel be drawn in the history and personality of the two.

Mr. Low, who has resigned the presidency of Columbia university in order that he may have free hand for his campaign, is several times a millionaire, but is ever on the alert to do his duty as a citizen. Born in Brooklyn fifty-one years ago, he entered Columbia at the age of seventeen and was graduated at the head of his class in 1879. He at once started in business and a staunch member of Tammany Hall. The family moved to Brooklyn when the present candidate was twenty, and, like Mr. Low, he received his primary education in the City of Churches. In 1880 he graduated from the College of the City of New York. Mr. Shepard's first noteworthy appearance in municipal affairs was his conduct of the case against John J. McKane, the "boss of Gravesend," which resulted in Mr. McKane's imprisonment. As a politician Mr. Shepard has been everything but a Republican. He is best known as a reformer. At one time he was a vigorous opponent of Hugh McLaughlin, but the two became fast friends later.

LIZZIE

A Story of the Sycamore Powder Mills,

BY "TIMMIE."

CHAPTER VI.

When Lizzie began her school life at Ward's Seminary she was at first shy and timid among so many new strange faces, but her close appreciation to her studies soon made her a favorite with the teachers and her her pleasant smile and kindly heart won many friends among the scholars.

Jessie Maynard, a young lady of seventeen, who lived in Nashville became a fast friend and Lizzie spent several nights at the elegant home of the latter. One night the two girls were exchanging confidences and Jessie said, "Lizzie I will tell you a great secret if you will promise never, never to tell a living soul."

She had never said a word to any one about it yet and I wouldn't have it known for the world."

"I will never breathe a word of it until you give me permission."

"Well I am going to be married next October. Let me see, this is March. Just seven months from now."

"Oh, that is a great secret sure. Who is the lucky man?"

"Howell Carrington, and he is just the nicest person you ever saw. I have had lots of sweethearts, but none of them were half as nice as Mr. Carrington."

Lizzie flushed painfully, then turning her head to conceal her emotion, said in a remarkably calm voice, considering the circumstances: "I congratulate you, Jessie, and I hope you will be happy all your life,"—then walking over to the window she pressed her hot cheek against the cold glass.

"Did you ever have a sweetheart Lizzie?" "Yes, I had one, but he died, and I have none now. I don't think I will ever marry."

Poor Lizzie, she was just now realizing how very dear Carrington had been to her. She had not fully known her heart until tonight, when it was too late, and her idol of clay had crumbled. This was the last time Lizzie visited the Maynard home although Jessie insisted frequently that she spend the night with her. She always had some excuse to prevent her going, and avoided Jessie as much as possible without making it noticeable. She applied herself more closely to her studies than ever, although her teacher greatly remonstrated with her for so doing, telling her she was growing pale and thin and advised her to take as much out door exercises as possible. Lizzie would smile and say "I can't afford to lose any time taking exercise. I can only be here a few months longer before my year will be up and I will get all the exercise I need when I go home."

The intervening month passed rapidly away and the closing day of school was at hand. When the examinations were over and the good-bys were being said, Jessie said to Lizzie, "You must be sure and come down the 10th of October. You know I am to be married on the 12th, and I want you to come, will you?"

Oh, no, I cannot possibly come. I will have so much to do when I get home and then I just couldn't come anyway. I am ever so much obliged to you though for the invitation."

When Lizzie reached the Sycamore Mills Mrs. Dinmore hardly knew the white faced, hollow-eyed girl that Jack assisted from the buggy.

"Well for the lands sake, she exclaimed can that be Lizzie Dinmore? Whatever have you been doing child to make the roses fade from your cheeks? If that's the way going to school in the city, I wouldn't want any more of it I can tell you. Didn't they give you anything to eat?"

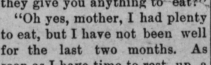

"Oh yes, mother, I had plenty to eat, but I have not been well for the last two months. As soon as I have time to rest up a bit and get all the nice sweet milk and fresh eggs I want I will be all right."

"If you don't begin to mend right away I will give you some bone set tea and make you some mullen syrup. That's the best thing I know of."

Lizzie smiled wearily and said, "Mother, I am not sick and don't need anything. All I want is rest, and she added to herself—time to forget."

Improved His Five Talents

Jno. Knox, of Hecla, has made a record this year at horseracing, which proves that when it comes to swapping mules and bartering horse-dish he does not bury his talent.

John says he received $5 in April last as a labor dividend from the St. Bernard Coal Company. With this he started a horseracing campaign, which has turned his little fund over and over until as late as he has cashed out with $101 cash, all of which he says he made out of the original $5 invested last April. A friend once said of John that he had "the blindest eye for a mule he ever saw."

Nobody has tried to beat THE BEE's recent bean story, nor the sorghum story, and the world is defied to tackle this horseracing record.

with his father and at the same time began to take a lively interest in public matters.

The campaign in 1880 for the election of Garfield was the means of bringing Mr. Low into the political limelight as the president of the then organized Brooklyn Republican Campaign club.

The following year he was elected mayor of Brooklyn on a platform of reform in municipal administration. In 1888 he was re-elected.

In 1889 he became president of Columbia college, which under Mr. Low has been turned into a university. It has been enriched by most generous gifts, one of these being a library built by Mr. Low himself at a cost of $1,000,000 as a memorial to his father.

Like Seth Low, Mr. Shepard is a wealthy man. Unlike Mr. Low, he owes his riches entirely to his own exertions, for he was born with little more than his brains and his energy. He is one of New York's most successful lawyers, but is best known from the fact that for more than a dozen years he has been before the people of his city and state in practically all the great movements, political and economic, that have marked that period.

For many years Mr. Shepard has made Brooklyn his home, but he is by been frequently in the public eye, thanks to the sensational actions of himself and his children. Don Carlos, when scarcely a year had elapsed since the death of his first wife. But the gossip that followed this wedding was nothing to the shock sustained by royal circles in Europe when it was learned that one of his daughters, the Infanta Elvira, had eloped with a married man named Folchi.

Signor Folchi was no adventurer, but a highly successful artist and kinsman of a cardinal. This, however, was small consolation to Don Carlos, who in a manifesto to his supporters solemnly disowned his daughter. Folchi and Elvira are now living in Algeria and are making things very uncomfortable for Don Carlos by suing him for the princess' share in her mother's fortune.

Don Carlos indeed seems to have been singularly disinclined to give his daughters their rights. The Princess Alice, after her separation from her husband, Prince Frederick of Schleswig-Holstein, also brought suit against her father, but the pretensions by legal quibbles staved off the day of reckoning until his daughter in despair retired to a convent. When the recent war with the Boers broke out, she enlisted as an ambulance nurse and went to China to tend wounded and dying soldiers.

There she met her only brother, Don Jaime, who was serving on the staff of the Russian commander in chief and who is considered by his comrades in arms the last of the Bourbon kings.

WILL RETIRE.

J. G. Metcalfe Deposed as General Manager of Denver & Rio Grande.

Place Given to One of George Gould's Old Employees.—Mr. Martin May Also Leave.

Denver, Col., Oct. 29.—In the reorganization of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, dictated by George Gould, who recently made a tour of the system, J. G. Metcalfe, who for two years has been general manager, is deposed to make room for one of Mr. Gould's old employees. He will retire November 1 and will be succeeded by J. M. Herbert, late general superintendent of the Southern Pacific.

General Manager J. G. Metcalfe came to the Denver & Rio Grande from the Louisville & Nashville road. He accepted the position of general manager of the Denver & Rio Grande more than two years ago.

No Fault Found With Metcalfe.

Mr. Metcalfe has acquitted himself with credit in the responsible position on the Denver & Rio Grande, and no reason is assigned for the change other than a desire of the Gould people to favor one of their old employees at this time. The news of the retirement of Mr. Metcalfe at this time created general surprise.

As Mr. W. S. Martin came to the Denver & Rio Grande as the special choice of the retiring general manager, it is accepted as highly probable that he will retire with his chief. He superseded N. P. Sample, now superintendent of the Baldwin Locomotive works.

LINDLE AND POSSEMENT

ARE FREE ONCE MORE

Bond Fixed and They Are Released at Once After Appellate Court Decision Is Received.

MANY FRIENDS ARE REJOICING.

J. B. Lindle, the deputy sheriff of Hopkins county who, with his two possemen, Wade McIntosh and Ed Johnson, was sentenced at a special term of court in August to two years in the penitentiary, is a free man, after being confined since the May term of the Hopkins Circuit court.

Lindle, with the two possemen, was convicted of manslaughter on the charge of killing Henry Taylor and Earl Cook, the leaders of an armed body of marching unionists, near the Cockfield mines, in January last, while the little posse was trying to carry out the orders of the sheriff to prevent intimidation of miners.

Some weeks ago, when the Madisonville union camp was filled with several hundred armed men, who were daily and nightly shooting into miners' houses and the Reinecke mine plant, the sheriff concluded that these prisoners were not safe in the Madisonville jail, and removed them to Hopkinsville.

Upon receiving news of the reversal of the lower court by the Court of Appeals Tuesday, the attorneys and others took steps for the release of the prisoners under bond. The sheriff sent to Hopkinsville for them. The bond was renewed Tuesday night at Madisonville, and an order issued to the deputy sheriff in charge of the prisoners setting out this fact and instructing him to release them upon arrival here, so that they might go to their homes as soon as possible. Lindle lives here; McIntosh and Johnson live at St. Charles, nine miles west of this place.

There is much rejoicing among their many friends who have all along looked upon them as innocent men who were fearlessly trying to perform their duty, and while so doing were fired on and compelled to return the fire in defense of their lives. There were only four officers on one side and one hundred and ten or more marching unionists, many of whom were armed, on the other.

A Frankfort dispatch, giving the gist of the decision of the Court of Appeals, is published in another column.

When the train reached here at 11 o'clock Tuesday night the prisoners were surprised and rejoiced to be released and allowed to go home at once. Although the matter had been kept a profound secret, there was a knot of friends at the train who gave the boys a warm welcome.

Lindle went home to his family, and McIntosh and Johnson engaged a rig at once to take them to St. Charles.

The drama is replete with interest, incident after incident following each other so closely that it seems the actors' invention must find its limit. But not the action sustains its novelty and force to the very close of the last act, which alone is worth seeing—a silent story effectively told to a hushed audience who struggle with tears.

ARMED CAMPS CONTINUE.

Men Kept in Union Camps in Large Numbers With Plenty of Guns.

ONLY A FEW COUNTY GUARDS ARE NOW AT THE MINES.

Mining Property Guarded at Private Expense for the Past Year—Union Recruits From Surrounding Counties.

The armed camps of the United Mine Workers are still flourishing at Nortonville and Madisonville. The Nortonville camp seems to be under direct command of W. B. Kissinger an organizer who has figured in the trouble in Hopkins county to no small extent.

Local members of the organization are ordered into the camps by threats of cutting off the allowance of food if they refuse. Persuaded or forced into joining the union, with promises of liberal support which is never forthcoming; prevented from getting work elsewhere by not allowing members "transfer cards," these men are indeed in distress. With winter at hand, poorly clothed as well as fed, this organization gives them Winchester, Colt and Mauser rifles instead of food and clothing, that they may take by force of arms the mines of Hopkins county, according to plans made by leaders who will be conveniently absent when fighting time comes—as witness the attacks on Reinecke mines.

When the militia left the county these camps were at once re-occupied, men and guns springing up in a night, and soon not less than 500 men, many of them from Indiana, and from Henderson, Ohio, Union, Webster, Christian and Muhlenburg counties confronted the operators and the 2,000 working miners of Hopkins county.

The presence of these camps of armed men, with the record of violence committed for one year past was and is a threat against the peace of the county and against life and property.

The coal operators, against whom this armed demonstration was directed, had but one thing to do—protect themselves. The Reinecke, the Monarch and the Oak Hill companies were granted a number of county guards, and employed many private guards beside. On the 26th of October the St. Bernard Company applied for county guards and secured twenty men. In addition to these men this company placed several times this number of its own employees on guard.

At this writing but five of the mines in the county are partly protected by county guards, while seven mines are entirely protected by the employees of the companies.

For one year the coal companies of this county have spent large sums of money in protecting their property from mobs, organized inside and outside the union camps, without costing the county one cent. As over 8,000 of the 31,000 people in the county are dependent directly upon the mines for a living it does seem as if the time had come when the entire county should bear at least a part of the burden.

If the people of the county will see to it that the laws now on the statutes books are enforced there will be no need of armed guards to protect life and property. Let the laws be enforced regardless of cheap and reckless politicians.

KILLING AT MADISONVILLE.

Ed Laffoon Dies of a Knife Wound Inflicted in a Fight.

WILL HORNBEAM CONFESSES.

Monday night groans attracted passers by at Madisonville and upon investigation Ed Laffoon, whose parents live near St. Charles, was found with an ugly knife wound in his body, lying on the railroad track near the business portion of the city. He was taken to Nisbett's livery stable where his wounds were dressed. A deep knife wound was found over the heart and his face was badly bruised. Laffoon died from the effects of the wounds early Tuesday morning. Two men were arrested on suspicion. They were B. Long, a negro, and a white man named Mich Hunt.

Laffoon was about twenty-three years old and of a roving disposition. He had frequently been in trouble during his short career. He was reported, in a dispatch from Madisonville, as being a union miner, but upon inquiring at St. Charles it is found that he has never worked in the mines there and was not known as a miner although he was a member of the United Mine Workers.

The two men who were first arrested have been released and the man who did the killing is now under arrest. He is Will Hornbeam, colored, and he says he and Laffoon had a fight over a woman. Hornbeam has a knife wound over the eye which he says was inflicted by Laffoon. His story is that both he and Laffoon ran after exchanging blows with their knives, he going for his pistol and Laffoon out of the house and away to the place where he was afterward found.

Something has been said since Laffoon's death about his connection with the Lindle case. A search of the court record shows that J. B. Lindle on May 3, 1901, issued a subpoena for Ed Laffoon to testify in behalf of Lindle. The officer who had the paper returned it with report that Laffoon could not be found.

ASSASSINATION OF COFFEY.

time would be required to gather evidence. J. C. Duffy, who represented Will Goldsworthy, said that his client was in delicate health and insisted on an immediate trial. The attorneys employed by the miners' union said they were unwilling to a longer postponement than two days. Judge Cansler named Thursday as the day for the examining trial and remanded the prisoners to jail. They are charged with the murder of Mr. Coffey and shooting at John Fields and others with intent to kill. Will Goldsworthy is also charged with resisting and attempting to kill an officer.

The prisoners refuse to talk of the affair. Sunday they notified the miners' union officials by telephone of their arrest.

HETTY GREEN'S SPOUSE.

Something About Husband of the Richest Woman in the World.

The fatal illness of Edward H. Green at Bellows Falls, Vt., brought to the bedside the octogenarian wife from whom he had lived apart many years, Hetty Green, the richest woman in the world. Indeed so little have they been together that few people outside of their relatives and friends have been aware that Hetty Green's husband was living.

Edward H. Green was a pioneer in the East India trade, making a fortune, which he lost by speculation not long after his marriage to Harriet H. Robeson, the daughter of a New Bedford Quaker. For a time the Greens lived in

ANOTHER SERENADE.

Much Ammunition Wasted Last Night in Neighborhood of Oak Hill.

MORE THAN ONE HUNDRED SHOTS.

From one hundred to one hundred and twenty-five shots were fired by an unknown party of men not far from the Oak Hill mines about 8:30 o'clock last night. The guards at Oak Hill remained at their post and awaited a possible attack, but no attack came. The guards did not reply to the fire. The shooting seems to have been done by a straggling party from the Nortonville union camp, and for the purpose of creating a sensation.

Adjutant General Murray and Capt. Ellis visited Earlinton yesterday and from here drove to Nortonville where they visited one of the union camps in that neighborhood.
